Information Collection, Use, and Sharing

Website Data

When you visit our website, we collect information on the efficiency and working of our site. The types of information your browser or Internet session automatically sends us each time you visit our site, which we automatically collect, includes:

- Your browser, e.g., Safari, Chrome, Edge, Firefox
- Your Internet domain, e.g., Gmail, Comcast, Bellsouth
- Your computer's operating system, e.g., Windows, Macintosh, UNIX, Linux
- Your navigation path, i.e., the URLs of where you come to our site from, which of our pages you visit, and where you go as you leave
- Your IP address

This information lets us see how users find our site, and it tells us which pages users visit most frequently so we can make our Web site more useful. We keep this information for an indefinite amount of time to improve the operation of our site and to provide better services to our users.

Cookies

Our website uses cookies (small files containing program code that reside on your computer), to provide usage statistics about our web site, and to understand where visitors learn about our web site. We also may use cookies to simplify the re-entering of your data. You can adjust your browser settings to opt out of the use of cookies by having your browser disable cookies. Look for the cookie options in your browser in the Options or Preferences menu.

Voluntarily Provided Information

Aside from the data automatically provided to us, identified elsewhere in this policy, we only have access to/collect information that you voluntarily provide to us, or that we gather, with your consent, based on your digital activity.
